Hi! You are looking at five authentic Lynx Wash Carbon Silicate Iron Meteorites. I found this Fall by the directions of an old miner friend of mine who witnessed a meteor afire, impacting the earth at approximately fifteen degrees. In the Fall area are numerous fossilized coral rocks, and many of the fall-rocks have coral fused to them. Witnessed Fall location, fused coral, burnt man-made lumber and the 60 plus elements, including low Ni, Co and 13REE's contained in these fall-rocks is the undisputed evidence that they are meteorites. All buyers will be provided with copies of the three lab analyses, free ore guide, a list of some minerals found in meteorites and other interesting information. Recent correspondence sent to me by Norbert Classen, President of the fictitious corporation known as the IMCA Inc. and some of his members, tends to suggest a mutual admiration society! To them I say: Of the billions of meteorites that bombard our planet daily; do you folks really believe that all of them must be identical in composition? This assumption that iron meteorites must assay with certain elements in order to be 'genuine' is not supported by chronologic studies of primordial radioisotopes. To assume that there can only be one type of iron/silicate meteorite formation is unfounded. No human on earth can definitely state that he/she knows, for a fact, exactly which one of the billions of heavenly bodies lost the errant rock known as a 'genuine' meteorite! One must remember: All of the planets and stars (suns), in the universe are constructed of the same elements that are found on earth! This fact has been proven by Spectrographic analysis many times over by qualified Astronomical experts world-wide. In this case, the burden of proof that my meteorites are not genuine rest with the accuser(s).

There are five pictures of polished slabs attached, the first four are Lynx Wash Carbon Silicate Irons and the fifth is the Miles IIE Iron Meteorite (ungrouped silicated). Notice how similar they are. I enjoy having the young female lynx coming by to share a snack of tuna or sardines with crackers once or twice a week. I had numerous questions and comments regarding the lynx. She showed up hungry and thirsty last November at my trailer-camp near the fall-area. I fed her kitty-chow on a daily basis for three weeks. Now she does quite well on her own, the jack-rabbit population declined some since. I intend to keep her wild. Pictures of the lynx were taken December 21, 2008. Thanks for looking
